- Technical information about the BlueJeansEvent -

During the EPICS Collaboration Meeting before the start of the sessions of the day I read this technical information: We want to make the meeting as live as possible and have therefore decided not to record the presentations in advance. According to the schedule, there will be time for questions at the end of the presentations. The attendees of the BlueJeans Event who have a microphone and camera can ask these questions "online". Please enter "Question" in the Q & A area. A moderator will then promote you to a presenter and unmute your video and audio. Then the question can be asked live. You will be downgraded back to a normal attendee without video after the question.

Questions can also be asked in writing via the Q & A area. Please note that we will only consider non-anonymous questioners.

The presentations are recorded and made available overnight for the Q & A session the following morning. We do not stop broadcasting during the breaks. We continue streaming. Info for the presenter: Please start the presentation only after the recording is activated. A voice says "Recording has started".
